HALF TERM 4: Shakespeare in Love

Film specifics:

- William Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet is a 1996 American romantic crime tragedy film directed, co-produced, and co-written by Baz Luhrmann;
- The film stars Leonardo DiCaprio and Claire Danes in the title roles.
- The film was released on November 1, 1996, by 20th Century Fox to commercial success, and was met with generally positive reviews.

Comparison to play:

- While it retains the original Shakespearean dialogue, the film represents the Montagues and the Capulets as warring mafia empires (with legitimate business fronts) during contemporary America, and swords are replaced with guns (with brand names such as "Dagger" and "Sword"), and a FedEx style delivery service is named "Post Haste"
- Some characters' names are also changed. Paris, Lord & Lady Montague and Lord & Lady Capulet are given first names (in the original, their first names are never mentioned); Friar Laurence becomes Father Laurence, and Prince Escalus is rewritten as the police chief of Verona Beach, being renamed Captain Prince.[12]
- The adaptation eliminates the character of Friar John, and some characters change families: in the original, Gregory and Sampson are Capulets, but in the film, they are Montagues; Abram, as Abra, and Petruchio, conversely, are shifted from the Montague to the Capulet family.

Director's intentions:

"With Romeo and Juliet what I wanted to do was to look at the way in which Shakespeare might make a movie of one of his plays if he was a director. How would he make it? We don't know a lot about Shakespeare, but we do know he would make a 'movie' movie. He was a player. We know about the Elizabethan stage and that he was playing for 3000 drunken punters, from the street sweeper to the Queen of England. So he was a relentless entertainer and a user of incredible devices and theatrical tricks to ultimately create something of meaning and convey a story. That was what we wanted to do."
